APRIL 2020

Earth Day AT 50!

Celebrate 50 years of Earth Day!

Our region faces many environmental challenges but also vast opportunities to take action. The City of Renton is committed to preserving and protecting natural resources, while providing a safe and healthy city for current and future generations. As the city finds new ways to reduce its environmental footprint, you can help by taking action to conserve resources and save money.

Today is the 50th celebration of Earth Day. Since we can't hold our normal celebration, our Solid Waste Utility group has provided some games and tips below.

Impact of COVID-19 on revenues and our response

On Monday, our administrative services administrator Jan Hawn gave city council an update on both the impact of COVID-19 on our revenues and the steps we are taking to mitigate revenue losses. I'd like to share that information with you.

City revenues come from taxes (sales, business & occupation, property, utility and real estate excise), the state (shared revenues), fees and charges (permitting and recreation programs) and city business (leases and miscellaneous sources). As you can imagine all these sources have been hit hard.

The figures I am sharing are projections by city staff based on our best estimates of the economic impact and what we've seen from history. They can certainly change as we navigate through this pandemic.

Jan's projections show a loss of just over $19 million in tax revenues. Add on approximately $2.4 million lost in waived rental fees and miscellaneous revenue (including fees for programs, activities and ticket sales), and we're looking a revenue shortfall of almost $22 million.

Here's a detailed breakdown:

- Sales Tax: Projecting a loss of $9 million, assuming a 50 percent decrease for the months social distancing is in effect and 17 percent for the remainder of the year. Auto sales in Renton normally bring in almost $500,000 per month in sales tax.
- B&O Tax: Projecting a loss of $2.4 million based on a 25 percent decrease in collections. Businesses have been offered a deferral of their taxes until June 30. Losses may be affected if production of the Boeing 737 MAX is not back into production by mid-year.
- Property Tax: Projecting a loss of $4.3 million, assuming a 20 percent loss covering all types of properties. King County has extended the April 30 deadline for first half payments until June 1.
- Utility Tax: Projecting a loss of $1.6 million, assuming a 10 percent loss due to business closures and the impacts to residents of COVID-19.
- Gambling Tax: Projecting a loss of $800,000, assuming closures of gambling businesses during social distancing.
- Real Estate Excise Tax: Projecting a loss of $1.2 million, assuming a 30 percent decrease due to loss of jobs, decreased transactions and decreased purchasing power.
- Shared State Revenues: Projecting a loss of $800,000, based on the 20 percent loss we experienced during the great recession.

Because of these impacts, I asked our administrators to look closely at their departments for ways to reduce expenses. We identified five common reductions:

- Reduction in discretionary spending
- Deferral of hiring for vacant positions
- Elimination of out-of-state travel and training
- Reduction in overtime
- Other expenditure reductions or cost-saving measures, such as sharing staff when possible

Implementing those five will generate significant savings. Administrators and their staffs continue to look every day at additional ways to implement additional cost-savings measures.

We are investigating revenue relief options offered by both the state and federal government, including the current stimulus package before congress. We're also looking at how much will be saved through under expenditures (items we have budgeted for and will not need) and, as a last resort, our reserve funds. It's too early in the game to provide concrete figures.

Budgets are on all of our minds and as you can see, we have the same focus at city hall. We are working diligently and methodically to make every reduction we can without affecting the level of service we provide to the residents of Renton.

Governor outlines steps on road to recovery

Gov. Inslee last night outlined his plan to begin re-opening the state's economy, a process he said is dependent on a continuing downturn in COVID-19 cases we currently see. He has appointed three leadership groups (public health, return to safe workplaces/economic recovery and health, and social support) to help him develop an informed consensus on sustainable recovery.

The governor is working on re-starting the construction industry. Limitations would need to be in place, including mandatory safety precautions and protective equipment. Gov. Inslee also indicated he will look at allowing a resumption of elective surgeries and more individual outdoor recreation opportunities when COVID-19 modeling confirms a reduction in cases.

He indicated the key to lifting is dependent on having widely available testing, plus tracing of those who have been tested and getting them, if necessary, into isolation or quarantine. The state is bringing on 1,500 people as a "rapid response" team to help with contact, tracking and isolation, but the state still needs more testing capacity and equipment. State Department of Health, local public health offices and the National Guard will comprise this team.

Inspections - Building and Development Engineering

Community and Economic Development Department (CED) has been receiving questions from homeowners and contractors regarding how the city is interpreting the construction-related provisions of Gov. Inslee's Stay Home, Stay Healthy Proclamation and related guidance issued by the Governor's Office.

- CED has interpreted the Stay Home, Stay Healthy order to deem new residential and commercial construction as non-essential activities, except that construction of public projects (such as public affordable housing projects) and public components of private projects (such as utilities and streets intended for turnover to the city) are essential activities. Furthermore, CED has interpreted the Stay Home, Stay Healthy order to allow construction related to the order's list of essential activities including supply chain for goods, services, and healthcare.
- Under these interpretations, CED will continue its physical inspections associated with the following city-issued permits:
 - Building permits for occupied residential structures necessary to avoid damage or unsafe conditions;
 - Building permits for buildings that are a necessary component of the community's supply chain for goods, services, and healthcare;
 - Engineering permits for facilities intended to be made part of the city's public infrastructure. Such facilities include water, sanitary sewer, and stormwater utilities intended to be transferred to the city at completion and street improvements intended to be transferred to the city at completion.
- Although CED will not be performing physical onsite inspections for new unoccupied homes or other projects not falling into the above list, some inspections can be accomplished virtually. If you are interested in more information about virtual inspections, please contact the Building Division: 425-430-7200.
- These interpretations are valid as of March 30, 2020 under the governor's guidance in effect as of that date. Please note that these interpretations are subject to change as more information becomes available regarding the efforts to contain COVID-19 or if further guidance is issued by the governor's office.
